

English: Literature, Composition, and Creative Writing

<http://www.pacificu.edu/as/english>

This document is intended to offer basic guidelines for two categories of students:

- those likely to pursue a degree in a discipline other than Literature or Creative Writing;
- those likely to pursue a Major or Minor in either Literature or Creative Writing, or both.

NOTE: Please pay close attention to the following abbreviations in the schedule and catalog.

- “ENGL” designates a literature class taught in the English department.
- “ENGW” designates a writing class taught in the English department.
 - There are two kinds of writing classes: Expository (ENGW 201, ENGW 202), and Creative (ENGW 206, 208, 209, 306, 308, 309).

Only an Expository writing class—ENGW 201 or 202--meets the Core Writing Requirement.

For Students Pursuing Degrees in Disciplines Other than Literature or Creative Writing

Literature:

All literature courses are open to all students, but check prerequisites for 300-level and 400-level courses.

There are no prereqs for any 200-level literature course (ENGL). However, do not advise any student into a literature course in the first semester of their first year because of the heavy FYS load.

For students interested in fulfilling the Humanities Core requirement, the best course to take is any section of ENGL 220. Historically, nonmajors have enjoyed this class immensely. If all sections of ENGL 220 are filled, the next best choice would be ENGL 200. However, as noted above, all 200-level literature courses are open to any student.

Writing:

Students planning to major in other disciplines must wait until their sophomore year to enroll in the College's Core Writing Requirement--ENGW 201 or ENGW 202.

All students should complete the Core writing requirement by the end of their second year.

All students need ENGW 201/202 before they can take any Creative Writing course.

For Students Pursuing, or Thinking About Pursuing, a Major or Minor in either Literature or Creative Writing, or Both

Students with an interest in Literature and/or Creative Writing may be advised into a 200-level literature course for Winter III or Spring semester of their first year in college. Even future English majors are not encouraged, though it is allowed, to take a Literature courses in the same semester they take FYS.

Likewise, those students with an interest in Creative Writing should be advised to take ENGW 201 in the second semester of their first year in order to be prepared to take ENG 206, 207, or 208 (the classes introducing Creative Writing) in their second year.

Only students with plans to major in Literature and/or Creative Writing should be encouraged to take both a literature and writing course in the second semester of their first year.

Students who have chosen to pursue a Major in Literature or Creative Writing should be counseled to find an English Department advisor by the end of their sophomore year at the latest. Courses at the 300-level have a prerequisite of 3 hours of literature (we strongly recommend junior standing); 400-level courses have a prerequisite of 6 hours of literature (we strongly recommend at least one 300-level course).

Students who have chosen to pursue a Minor in Literature or Creative Writing should be counseled to find an English Department member to serve as a secondary advisor by the end of their sophomore year.

NOTE: Students interested in Creative Writing who have completed their ENGW 201 Core Writing Requirement may sign up, without a faculty signature, for any one of the ENGW 206, 208, or 209 sections; those courses do not have to be taken in any particular order.

General Information on WRITING Courses at Pacific University

ENGW 201: satisfies Core requirement. This course gives students the opportunity to develop their work in essay writing and in writing a research paper. Readings are drawn from a wide range of sources. Meets prerequisite requirements for professional programs. Some of these classes will have a certain thematic focus: Gender, Disability, Holocaust, Sports, Romantic Love, for example. Students should only take this class once, even if the topic changes. (They will only receive credit for taking it once.)
4 Credits

ENGW 202: satisfies Core requirement and functions just like 201 in terms of writing skills learned. 4 credits. Students should NOT take both ENGW 201 and ENGW 202. They will not receive any credit for one of the courses, if they do so. 4 credits.

ENGW 206: Introduction to Creative Writing – Poetry. Does not satisfy Core writing requirement; prerequisite: successful completion of English 201 or 202. All sections require revision and use the workshop model of instruction. 4 credits.

ENGW 207: This course is no longer offered.

ENGW 208: Introduction to Creative Writing—Fiction. Does not satisfy Core writing requirement; prerequisite: successful completion of ENGW 201 or 202. All sections require revision and use the workshop model of instruction. 4 credits.

ENGW 209: Introduction to Creative Nonfiction. Does not satisfy Core writing requirement; prereq: successful completion of English 201 or 202. All sections require revisions and use the workshop model of instruction. 4 credits.

ENGW 301: This course is no longer offered.

ENGW 305: Research Methods in the Humanities. This required class for English Literature and Creative Writing Majors concentrates not only on the up-to-date methods of research used for writing in the Humanities, but also the traditional methods of pursuing a topic, note-taking, assimilation of materials and the presentation, written and oral, of completed research. The class is also open to non-English majors in the Humanities. 2 credits.

ENGW 306: Advanced Poetry Writing. A workshop for writing and discussing poetry. May be repeated. Prerequisite: ENGW 201 or ENGW 202; two courses—passed with a “B” or higher— from ENGW 206, 208, or 209. 4 credits.

ENGW 308: Advanced Fiction Writing. A workshop for writing and discussing fiction. May be repeated. Prerequisite: ENGW 201 or ENGW 202; two courses—passed with a “B” or higher— from ENGW 206, 208, or 209. 4 credits.

ENGW 309: Advanced Nonfiction Writing. A workshop for writing and discussing creative nonfiction. May be repeated. Prerequisite: ENGW 201 or ENGW 202; two courses—passed with a “B” or higher— from ENGW 206, 208, or 209. 4 credits.

ENGW 465/466: Editing Literary Journals. Graded P/NP. May be repeated. 2 credits.

ENGW 497/498: Senior Seminar: Creative Writing. Prerequisite: Senior CW majors only; at least one upper-division course from ENGW 306, 308, or 309. 2 credits.

ENGLISH MAJOR FOUR-YEAR PLAN

There are many paths to an English major. What follows is a guide. Note: One American Literature class is required.

FIRST YEAR

FALL

- Hum 100
- Core electives

WINTER III

- Engl 220 or Engl 200

SPRING

- Engl 232 or Engl 229
- Engw 201 or 202—for CW Majors or Minors only (or for those seriously considering such)
- Core electives

SECOND YEAR

FALL

- Engw 201
- Engl 227
- Core, Major and/or Minor Electives

WINTER III

- Core, Major or minor electives

SPRING

- Engw 206 or 208, 209
- Engl 340 or 341 or 342
- Engl 323
- Electives

THIRD YEAR

FALL

- Engl 343
- Engl 416 or 418, 421, 422, 423, 425, 430, 455
- Core, Major or Minor Electives

WINTER III

- Electives

SPRING

- Engw 305
- Engl 416 or 418, 421, 422, 423, 425, 430, 455
- Phil 304
- Electives

FOURTH YEAR

FALL

- Senior Seminar in Literature or Creative Writing
- any 300 or 400-level English literature course

WINTER III

Major or Minor electives

SPRING

- Senior Seminar in Literature or Creative Writing
- any 300- or 400-level Literature or Creative Writing course