We encourage you to share this brochure with your doctor. Here's a note that can help.

Dear Physician,

Here are some of the most commonly prescribed generic and preferred/formulary medications. This list is not intended to substitute your professional judgment. But we hope that you use it as a guide to prescribing medications that may help our member save money—if appropriate—by receiving the most value from their Rx benefits. For a complete list, please visit us at www.regencerox.com.

Please keep in mind

This brochure is just a tool to help you at the doctor's office. It is not a complete list of preferred/formulary medications. Please keep in mind:

- For a complete list, review your RegenceRx Preferred Medication List/Formulary brochure or visit us at www.regencerox.com.
- For questions about your prescription benefits, please call the Customer Service phone number on your member card.
- This list may change over time, for new generics or brand name products, new information, or other factors.

At RegenceRx, we're dedicated to providing the tools you need to understand your options and be a more informed consumer. This preferred medication list/formulary will help—with the answers you need to access affordable prescription benefits.

Determining Cost

How much you pay for a prescription depends on whether it's a:

- Generic
- Preferred/formulary brand name
- Non-preferred/non-formulary brand name (brand name medication not on the list)

Your cost is lowest for generic medications and highest for non-preferred/non-formulary brand name medications. You can find specific coverage and copay information in your summary of benefits.

Generic medications

Generics provide the same therapeutic benefits of their brand name counterparts, without the brand name price. In fact, generic medications are generally 20-60% less expensive. The U.S. Food and Drug Administration assures both generic and brand name medications meet the same high standards for strength, quality, and purity.

Newly-introduced generic medications

When a generic is introduced to the marketplace, it immediately becomes available at the lowest copay. After a generic is available, the brand name medication will only be available at the non-preferred/non-formulary copay.

Preferred/formulary brand name medications

Brand name medications on the preferred medication list (PML) have been chosen because our professional review has shown each of them to be high-quality, effective, and affordable. Preferred/formulary brand name medications are either more effective or equally effective—at a lower cost—than other brand name medications not listed.

Non-preferred/non-formulary brand name medications

Non-preferred/non-formulary brand name medications are those that do not appear on the PML due to side effects, therapeutic performance, or higher cost. You may still opt for these medications, but your copay will be higher than any other prescription type.

Commonly Prescribed Preferred/Formulary Medications

Please Note: Brand names are included in parentheses next to the generic name only as a reference. Only the generic product (in bold) on this list is available at the generic copay. The brand referenced in parentheses (i.e. Fulvicin P/G[®]) is not available at the generic copay.

Preferred/Formulary Brand Name Medications: Listed below is a partial list of commonly prescribed preferred/formulary medications. Preferred/formulary products are limited to the dosage form and strength listed; if no strength is listed, all strengths for the listed dosage form are preferred/formulary. Sustained action/release (SA/SR), extended release (ER/XR), long-acting (LA), enteric coated (EC) are only preferred if listed. This list may change.

Occasionally, PML/formulary medications may be contract exclusions and, therefore, are not covered. Some medications may require prior authorization or have quantity limits. We encourage you to consult your doctor, our Web site or your contract or benefits booklet for more detailed pharmacy benefit information.
